Sig Taus find home

by Jim Allen

Tentative plans for the Sig Tau Gamma fraternity to finally purchase their home away from home look in order, and this time hurdling the zoning board will not be a prerequisite.

With the Sig Tau shingle already leaning against the Coldwell Banker "sold" sign in front of 1820 Ninth, one of the fraternity's advisers, Ira Barrett, said Monday the closing of the deal is "imminent."

"Our offer was approved on Friday," Barrett said. "We'll close the deal I think by the 13th or 15th of August."

A spokesman for Coldwell Banker, who wished to remain unnamed, said that while the offer was agreed to verbally, the final paperwork with current owners Mark and Georgia Hillard is still in the works.

Barrett estimated that the house will hold nine to 10 fraternity members, adding that "it has a lot of possibilities."

Depending on the level of alumni support, Barrett said the house holds "definite possibilities" for building an addition to accommodate more residents in the future.

Barrett conceded the house on Ninth, though, definitely came in second place to the fraternity's original choice of 1548 Fourth St.

"There's a substantial difference. That place on fourth was a palace—it was stately," he said, adding that the purchase of the house on Ninth, though, is a "good solution."

The purchase of the home on Fourth Street was blocked by a unanimous denial of a zoning variance by the Charleston Board of Zoning and Appeals,

Local police begin issuing belt citations

by Michael Clark

Now that the month long grace period is over, Charleston police will begin issuing tickets to drivers who are not wearing their seat belts, a police spokesman said.

As of last Thursday, the Illinois State Police began issuing tickets to unbuckled drivers. A spokesman, of the Illinois State Police, said, "We will begin issuing tickets to those drivers who are not wearing the seat-belts."

The spokesman, who wanted to remain unnamed, said the cost of the ticket is $25, but with processing charges, the conviction will cost a total of $50.

He said the law has already brought about driver cooperation.

"The seat belt law is getting more people to wear them," he said. "But really it's for their own good that they should be wearing them."

When the law was enacted on July 1, the state police stated they would be issuing only warning tickets for a one-month grace period.

The spokesman said determinants of whether a driver would be pulled over for the seatbelt violation would "depend on the situation and the officer."

Charleston Assistant Police Chief Herb Stedinger agreed with the state police officer's assessment of the enforcement of the law.

"Charleston Police Department is using about the same policy as the state police," he said.

"We have been giving warning tickets out," Stedinger said. "But we will start giving tickets out" depending upon the circumstances.

Stedinger said the department has given some warning tickets about the violation, but said there are no (See LOCAL, page 3)

Local tavern forced to close doors because of city parking violation

by Michael Clark

The Panther Lounge has once again been forced to temporarily shut their doors because of a pending violation with the city parking code.

The tavern, located at 1421 Fourth St., will be closed for two weeks, or until the owners meet the required city ordinance, because the establishment allegedly does not have the correct number of parking spaces required by a Charleston ordinance.

City Administrator Mike Steele said the owners of the Panther Lounge, Mike Bickers and Jim Sears, will be required to shut their doors from July 31 to Aug. 14 because the bar does not meet the ordinance.

Charleston Zoning Officer Terry Sharp said the ordinance states that bars and similar businesses must provide one required parking space for every two fixed seats in the building, or one parking space for every 25 square feet of seating area where there are fixed seats.

In addition, Sharp said there must be at least one parking space for every two employees working during the largest shift. The owners are also required to provide two parking places for the apartment located above the establishment.

Charleston Mayor Murray Choate said the violation of the city ordinance goes back to last year when former Mayor Clancy Pfeiffer found the two owners in violation of the ordinance in October.

Since the initial shutdown, the pair have appealed to the Illinois Liquor Control Commission to repeal the suspension of their liquor license.

The two questioned the city's interpretation of the ordinance when they were shutdown, he said.

Choate said the owners failed to appear at a May 16 appeals hearing and failed to make a request for a hearing in July.

Bickers and Sears were not available for comment on Friday or Monday. Their attorney, Mervin Beil of Springfield, was also unavailable for comment.

On July 17, the liquor commission gave Bickers and Sears 20 days to request a hearing, Choate said.

"The owners will have the two weeks to meet the city ordinance," Choate said. "If they don't, they will have to stay shut down until they do."

"I feel the two do want to meet the city ordinance," he said.

Choate said the two proprietors will also have to meet a requirement which would make both of the owners' names to appear on the liquor license.

Sharp explained that the city code only applies to establishments built after 1969 and that those built before that time are exempt under a grandfather clause.

Ike's, at University Village, and Marty's, 1666 Fourth Street, were established before the 1969 code was approved, he said. Also he noted that E.L. Kracker's, 1405 Fourth Street, was issued a permit in 1977 and the parking lot is in accordance with what was on their permit's application.

But Sharp said the Panther Lounge violated their original permit agreement with the city.

"The owners either added seating or they took away some parking spots," Sharp said. "Either way, they violated the ordinance."

Degrees, diplomas to be distributed at ceremony

by Diana Winson

Summer graduation is just around the corner, as Eastern's commencement ceremony is all set for this weekend.

The ceremony will begin at 6 p.m. Sunday, Aug. 11, and will be held on the Library Quad. In the event of rain, the ceremony will be held in the East Gym.

About 500 students will take part in the ceremony, Eastern's director of information and publications, Harry Read said.

Degrees will be conferred and diplomas awarded to students by Eastern President Stanley Rives, who will also preside over the ceremony, Read said.

This summer's faculty marshal will be Ruth Dow, a home economics professor who has been a faculty member since 1969.

Dow, by representing the college of applied sciences, will be the first to represent one of Eastern's various colleges.

Previously, history professor Laverne Hamand served as faculty marshal at the ceremonies, Read said. However, Hamand retired after the spring commencement.

Summer Student Senate Speaker Larry Markey, a senior of Flossmoor, will remark on behalf of the student body. Carol Lee Newlin, a 1957 graduate from Paris and president of Eastern's alumni association, will also speak.

Students will be able to pick up their caps and gowns at the following times: from 9 a.m. to noon and 1-5 p.m. Thursday; 1-4 p.m. Friday; and 3-5 p.m. Sunday. They may be picked up at the West Ballroom of the University Union, and students are encouraged to pick them up early as the gowns will need to be pressed.

Correction

In the Tuesday, July 30 edition of The Summer Eastern News, it was incorrectly reported that Council on Academic Affairs member Kandy Baumgardner said the council's new plan to lower the required score on the Test Of English as a Foreign Language for international students could lead to the presence of academically marginal students.

What Baumgardner said was that the new plan could lead to the presence of international students who were marginal in their knowledge of the English language.

As Baumgardner said in a letter to the News, "I stated in the meeting that we need to be careful about admitting students with marginal to poor ability in English. This has nothing to do with their academic ability."

who sided with local residents. Despite the pleas of Barrett and other fraternity members, residents voiced fears that the Sig Taus would bring property devaluation, noise, traffic and future variance requests with them.

While the home on Fourth Street is zoned for R-3 for limited multi-family use, the $49,000 three-bedroom house on Ninth Street is zoned R-4 for unlimited multi-family use which allows fraternities.

Barrett said the Sig Taus will be the first students to reside at the home, adding that the house is currently in very good condition. "I would say this officially marks a new era for the Sig Taus," Barrett said, adding that while the organization "never ceased," it did become disorganized prior to their recent revitalization under Barrett.

"We have new faces, a new house, a new attitude and new advisers," he said, calling the current organization a "rejuvenated situation."

Local

figures available on the number of warning tickets issued.

Meanwhile, the Coles County Sheriff's Department is continuing to issue only warning tickets.

"We're not pulling people over for a violation," said Bob Campbell, a spokesman for the Coles County Sheriff's Department. "We would consider issuing a ticket if there was an accident."

Campbell also said people seem to be wearing the belts more since the law was passed, but said his department has yet to issue even warning citations on the law.

But the belt regulation is causing the police headaches in trying to enforce the law.

"The law is hard to enforce," Campbell said. "The over-the-shoulder strap is easier to see than the belt strap."

Speech class slates seat belt law forum

by Diana Winson

The seat belt law has been in effect for just over a month now, but citizens are still debating the requirement of being "strapped in."

In order to allow those who believe in or disagree with the law to voice their opinions and listen to those of experts, a forum is being conducted Tuesday by members of instructor Frank Parcells' Interview and Conference class.

"The Seat Belt Law: You Decide" is the title of the forum, which will take place at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday in the Booth Library Lecture Hall.

Parcells said the program was an assignment for class members as students were supposed to come up with a relevant topic for a forum. He said Tuesday's forum should be an "informational" program on the different aspects of the recently adopted law.

Included in the forum will be guest speakers Randy Bolin, coordinator for the Comprehensive Community Occupant Restraint Program, Brian Bower, of the Brainard, Bower, and Kramer, a Charleston law firm, and Coles County Coroner Dick Lynch. Other law enforcement officials are also scheduled to take part in the forum.

Each speaker will talk for a few minutes on various aspects of the seat belt law. Afterwards, class members and members of the audience will be able to ask questions and take part in a discussion, forum coordinator Molly O'Neill said.

However, "even though I firmly believe in seat belts, it's up to the individual" to decide whether to wear them, he said.

Bower said he will be talking about the legal aspects of the seat belt law.

In this, he said he will compare the seat belt law to the former motorcycle helmet law, which was overturned by the U.S. Supreme Court. He will also be looking at the legal difficulties involved in the enforcement of such laws.

Bower said he is a "strong believer" in the necessity of wearing a seat belt, but he is not sure about the government's right to tell people they have to wear one.

Despite the law, Bower said convictions will probably be hard to get against people who want to go to court and defend themselves.

AL PACINO SCARFACE

In the spring of 1980, the port at Mariel Harbor was opened, and thousands set sail for the United States. They came in search of the American Dream.

One of them found it on the sun-washed avenues of Miami... wealth, power and passion beyond his wildest dreams.

He was Tony Montana. The world will remember him by another name... SCARFACE.

He loved the American Dream. With a vengeance.

Stop boozing, start booking for finals week

Finals week is quickly approaching and believe it or not, it's time to start booking.

Now that finals are just around the corner, it's time to forget about the social scene for a while and start catching up on those late assignments.

The following are a few tips on how to get better grades this semester.

•1. Never agree to meet a friend to study at the bars. Although the initial plan of going to the bars to get a lot of work done is good, you won't get much accomplished. And many would find the noise, music and alcohol distracting.

•2. Study your most difficult subject first. This rule is really tough because it makes many people want to break rule number 1. But again, it's for your own good.

You will find that by studying your most difficult subject first, you will have completed the hardest part.

•3. Don't play loud rock, disco or punk music that could cause severe brain damage. Loud music does not help when attempting to study for a final exam.

•4. It is not a wise choice to take amphetamines or No-Doz to keep you up for late-night studying. If you study early in the day and get a good night's rest, you are more likely to do better on the exam than you would if you stayed up all night cramming.

Which brings us to our next rule—5. Never cram. Studying two minutes for a five page test won't get you the grade that you could have earned if you had studied five hours.

•6. When going to take the test, have a positive mental attitude. If you studied fully for the test, you will do a good job. Enter the test with a positive attitude and you'll do better.

The last tip you do once you have completed finals—celebrate! When you are done with finals, head to the closest bar and enjoy yourself. Also, play loud music and get involved with all kinds of social gatherings. And by the way, good luck on finals.

News items Ripley should consider

It was surprising to see students' responses to the The Summer Eastern News (June 20 edition) question "Who are Stan Rives and Edgar Schick?" A few people didn't have a clue.

That's fairly understandable, though. Has anyone seen Stan "The Man" lately. Has anyone ever seen Stan for that matter. He's one of the most low-key, non-visible presidents we've ever had.

Word has it that Stan's still alive and well, operating behind the confines of the castle walls in Old Main. Believe it or not.

I've observed some other things that maybe Ripley's Believe it or Not program should come down and check out.

How about this: The University Board has presented several high quality films this summer, none of which are rated X. Believe it or not.

The Summer Student Senate has been relatively quiet this summer. For once, these young politicians haven't been the center of controversy.

It's not hard to believe that they haven't accomplished that much, if anything. But what is hard to believe is that they haven't publicly abused (verbally) or impeached anyone. Is Club Senate dead?

In the Stevenson Tower parking lot, where most of the football Cardinals park their cars, I think I saw a Ford among all the Mercedes and Jaguars. Believe it or not.

While we're on the subject of the Cardinals, they have yet to sign their first round draft choice. This is

Players, owners sliding into talks

"Good afternoon everybody, and welcome to Shea Stadium in New York for another round of the major league baseball contract negotiations. Today's game is the 787th in the best-of-whatever grudge match between the players and the owners, two potent and powerful rivals. This oughta be some kind of contest, shouldn't it Joe?"

"You bet, Tony. There's a capacity crowd in the stands today, and I think they'll see a game as dramatic as the player walkouts in 1972, 1980 and 1981, each of which saw the owners get decisively trounced. Just look at the stats. In the last 18 years, average player salaries have risen from $19,000 to $329,000 annually. If that's not an indication of the way the players have dominated this series, I don't know what is."

"That's right, Joe. It's not uncommon at all these days for second-string shortstops who bat .210 to be driving at least one Mercedes."

"Here they come, Tony. The owners are out of the dugout, and they're taking their places at the table. You can see their coach, Lee MacPhail, exchanging high-fives with them one by one. It's exciting to see these pathetically out-of-condition men, some of them in their 70s, jumping up and down out there, ready for hardball."

"And the players head out to join them, Joe. You can see the teeth-clenching determination in their faces. Don Fehr, acting executive director of the Major League Players Association, is clapping his hands and shouting at them to play tough. I think they're ready."

"The players have said for some time they just want the owners to play ball with them, Tony. And we'll see if they do, as the owners get ready to make their first pitch."

"MacPhail's into his windup, and he unleashes what looks like a wild, looping curve. That's not too surprising. Is it, Joe?"

"Not at all, Tony. The owners have thrown a lot of curves at the players in these contests. Let's see what the call is."

Crossview:

Michael Waters

"Joe, it looks like MacPhail's pitch is a claim the owners lost $43 million last year, despite record-high attendance figures, and the owners will soon be broke unless they place a cap on player salaries."

"And look, Tony. The players have stepped out of the box and are going to let MacPhail's pitch sail by. They don't think it's worth even looking at."

"Here comes the next pitch, Joe—and this time the owners are saying that if they can't have a cap on salaries, then they won't continue to give the players' pension fund one-third of the owners' TV revenues. They claim that, with the current six-year TV package, if they keep giving the players one-third of television revenues, it would increase the players' share from $15.5 million to $60 million. The owners are calling it a steal."

"And the players have taken a hard whack at that one, Tony. They're hotly demanding the one-third provision be written into their new contract. And now they're alleging the owners actually made a $9 million profit last year."

"And look at this, Joe. Players' coach Don Fehr has brought in a Stanford economist named Roger Noll to pinch-hit. And Noll is battling the owners around with a 47-page report which accuses the owners of doing some screwy bookkeeping, by overestimating expenses and underestimating revenues."

"Neither side has yet to get to first base with anything, Tony."

"That's true, Joe. But what's interesting here is that, unlike in past years of this series, there's really no principle involved here. It all boils down to cold cash. Instead of demanding recognition of new legal rights, the players have adopted a defensive strategy which holds they ought to continue to be paid the type of money that, say, rock 'n' roll stars get."

"And the owners have in effect demanded, Tony, that the players agree to save the owners from themselves. The owners are as responsible as anyone for skyrocketing player salaries, due to intense competition to sign free agents."

"But as we get back to action, Joe, we see the owners are accusing the players of being out in deep left field. They've stood up and turned their empty pants pockets inside out to dramatize their belief that several franchises are going to go bankrupt in the next few years unless the players help the owners find a way to keep paying rising salaries."

"And the players are also standing up, Tony. They're pointing out the rate of salary increase has slowed dramatically in the last three years, and that the owners are full of it. The players look like they're getting ready to walk out. It looks like a called strike."

"You bet, Joe. And as we—wait! Look up at the stands, Joe!"

"You're right, Tony. Where did all the fans go?"

becoming a regular occurrence so it's not that hard to believe.

The university has finally decided to concentrate on getting a higher minority enrollment. Truly a miracle that's been a long time coming.

If you can't maintain this ridiculously low standing, you have to wonder how many brain cells have been lost through the years.

Senate completes goals

by Michael Clark

The Summer Student Senate announced Monday that all summer goals have been completed.

At the last summer senate meeting, Summer Senate Speaker Larry Markey said he was pleased with the progress the senate has made this summer. He cited the accomplishment of major projects that were started in early June.

"We did a lot of work this summer," he said. "The summer senate actually accomplished something."

Markey cited the completion of the Rape Prevention Handbook, Activities Day plans and the Student Discount Card.

The Rape Prevention Handbooklet is an attempt to educate students about the seriousness of rape and possible preventive measures in avoiding rape. The fall senate will distribute the booklet in the fall.

Activities Day, slated for this fall, is an attempt to get students involved with a number of Eastern organizations. Activities Day will be conducted in the Union.

The Student Discount Card is an attempt to give students a discount on items at participating Charleston retailers. The card will be distributed in the fall.

Senator Susan Murrie also said she is still making plans with the campus police about bicycle registration and plans for a registration table in the Union.

Soccer team loses recruit

by David Brown

If Eastern's soccer team can replace All-American sweeper back Albert Adade, they could return to championship form, but replacing him will not be an easy task, Eastern soccer coach Cizo Mosnia said.

Mosnia had recruited Salvatore Cammaratta, a sweeper back from Edmonton, Alberta, Canada who was to fill Adade's shoes, but Cammaratta recently backed out of his commitment to Eastern.

"He was getting pressure from his coaches in Canada and he also had financial problems," Mosnia said.

Cammaratta could not be reached by press time Monday, but his mother Giaele Cammaratta explained her son's problems with coming to Eastern to play soccer.

"The American dollar is too high," she said, noting that the current exchange rate heavily favors the American dollar over its Canadian counterpart.

She said at this time, he could not handle the expense of living and going to school in United States.

While Cammaratta may still be playing soccer, it is not likely he will play in the United States.

"He'll go to the University of Alberta," Cammaratta's mother said, "and I think he'll play soccer there."

With Cammaratta's decision not to come to Eastern, Eastern's soccer team is left facing what could be a good season without a key player.

"Our only problem is that we have no sweeper," Mosnia said.

He added that he is pleased with his recruits for the upcoming season, despite losing Cammaratta and failing in a last-minute attempt to nab a replacement before the Aug. 1 recruiting deadline.

"The players coming in are quite good. I think we'll be a little better this year," Mosnia said. "I know more about the players."

Six starters will be returning for the Panthers and according to Mosnia, most of the new recruits have an opportunity to make the starting line-up.

The Panthers finished last season with a 11-5-1 record and just missed a playoff bid. The team's practices are scheduled to begin Sunday, Aug. 19.

Stellar performances highlight games; athletes, fans keep busy their own way

Sports excitement has simply abounded at Eastern in the last several weeks.

We joined a new conference, Cub/Cardinal rivalries rekindled old flames of disaffection, the Football Cardinals came to town and the Panther Pant ran for the 20th time.

In the midst of all this exciting stuff, the Prairie State Games took place July 18-22. I would be remiss if I did not mention it.

The Games opened with the usual pomp, but unusual circumstance. Oh yeah, Big Jim Thompson was there to provide the pomp. But he was joined by Major League Baseball Commissioner Peter Ueberroth who spoke to the athletes. Ueberroth had plenty to say about the Games and nothing to say about the impending baseball strike deadline of Aug. 6.

Anyway, stellar performances from Eastern students were the highlight of the second Prairie State Games. However, a number of those performances were for their own hometown regions.

Eastern senior and world-class swimmer Miguel Carrion took three gold medals and a bronze. He captured the

Sports file:

400-meter individual medley with a 5:10 time and the 200-meter backstroke with a 2:20.05 clocking. His third gold medal and bronze were earned via team efforts in the 800- and 400-meter freestyle relays respectively.

A hearty congratulations to several Open Division Greco-Roman wrestlers from Eastern who won in their weight class at the Games. In the 163.5-pound class, Chris McFarland captured the gold. The 125.5-pound winner was Lorne Garrett and Cedric Garrett won the 114.5-pound title.

Eastern's lady cager, Chris Aldridge, and her Blue-Gray (East Central Illinois) Region teammates earned silver medal honors. Their efforts fell short in the championship as the Windy City Region (Chicago area) won 84-80.

Eastern trackster Larry Thoenissen

also won a silver medal in the shotput competition. Thoenissen hurled the lead ball for 50'7."

Meanwhile, the Association of Mid-Continent Universities most valuable player, Eastern basketball standout Jon Collins, and his Southern Region team fell short of medal competition. But Collins had impressive showings, including 25 points on Friday.

Former Panthers, such as cross country runner Mike Larson, won the gold in the 5,000-meter run with a 14:40 clocking; Rick Francis took silver in the hammer throw with a toss of 172-feet, six inches; and, Nancy Kassebaum had a good showing in the Southern Region's losing basketball bid for the bronze, 70-65. Kassebaum scored 11 points.

Maybe you saw some of the Games on television or caught some of the action in Champaign. Nevertheless, they truly were exciting. If you didn't know about it—shame on you.

Tryouts set

by Becky Lawson

Several coaches announced they will have walk-on tryouts this fall.

Women's volleyball coach Betty Ralston said she will review walk-ons Aug. 25 in Lantz Gym. Interested students should report to Lantz at 4:30 p.m. with tryouts running from 5-8 p.m.

Students interested in playing on Eastern's football team should contact the football office as soon as they get on campus this fall, assistant coach Larry Edlund said.

Students should have proof of insurance and a physical when they come to try out, he added. The first football tryout will be Aug. 31.

On Aug. 28 at 4:30 p.m. in Lantz's west bleachers, there will be a meeting for Eastern's baseball team, coach Tom McDevitt said. He added that there will be no spring tryouts except for students in a fall sport, or students attending Eastern for the first time in January 1986.

Eastern's soccer team will also have tryouts, soccer coach Cizo Mosnia said.

He said that on Aug. 28-29 at 2 p.m. there will be open trials at the soccer field, specifically for walk-ons.
